Senior Citizen Audit Program

This special program was created by the Rutgers University Board of Governors to permit retired New Jersey residents, age 62 or older, to attend courses on a space-available, noncredit basis. There are no tuition costs for auditing courses.

Here are details about the program:

- Only courses offered during the spring and fall semesters on the Camden, Newark, or New Brunswick campuses are open to auditors. No other courses offered at the university are available under the Senior Citizen Audit Program, including courses offered during other terms.
- Courses listed as closed on the online Schedule of Classes—those that have reached maximum capacity—are not open to auditors.
- Auditing is a courtesy offered at the discretion of the professor. If the professor informs you that auditors are not permitted, please select another course.
- Auditors must wait until the first day of class to have a professor approve and sign the Permission to Audit Form for the appropriate semester.
- Auditors are passive participants. Please wait for the professor’s invitation to participate. Registered, matriculated students are always given priority for the professor’s time.
- Your name will not appear on the professor’s roster. Your status is that of a nonregistered auditor.

If you would like to receive the Senior Citizen Audit Program registration information and audit forms by mail, or if you have questions about the program, please contact Kay Schechter in the Office of Community Affairs at 732-932-7823, ext. 682, or email kays@ur.rutgers.edu
Camden Registration Procedures

1. Scan for openings in available courses at http://soc.ess.rutgers.edu/soc

2. For course descriptions and prerequisites, visit http://catalogs.rutgers.edu/current.shtml

3. Take the Permission to Audit Form to the first session of the class and request permission from the professor to audit the class. Permission is granted solely at the discretion of the professor. Senior citizens may not audit courses that are closed.

4. To obtain parking privileges, please contact the Camden Parking and Transportation Services office at 856-225-6137. Permits are not available online. For more information, visit http://parking.camden.rutgers.edu

5. Send a signed copy of your Permission to Audit Form to the Office of Community Affairs.

Additional Services Available with Approved Permission to Audit Form

- Library: You may obtain a guest library card at the circulation desk of any Rutgers library. http://www.libraries.rutgers.edu/rul/libs/robeson_lib/robeson.shtml

- Computer Resources: You may obtain a guest Rutgers account for senior citizen auditors. Bring your Permission to Audit Form to the Office of Information Technology–Camden on the first floor of the Business & Science Building, Room 121 or Room 126, where your information will be entered. This will enable you to create a computer account (NetID/password) on Clam, the student system in Camden. Please be sure to read all Rutgers email, particularly email from OIT–Camden, so you do not lose computer access.

- Senior citizen auditors are not eligible to use recreation facilities or the RUconnection ID.

Instructions for Professors:

1. Senior citizens may only audit regular courses during fall and spring semesters.
2. Professors have sole authority to grant or deny permission to audit their classes.
3. Auditors are not permitted in courses that are closed.
4. Auditors must wait until the first day of class to request and receive permission to audit a course.
5. Auditors will not be listed on class rosters.
6. The auditor’s level of participation is solely at the professor’s discretion.

Instructions for Auditors:

1. Send a signed copy of this form to the Office of Community Affairs at the fax number or mailing address listed below.
2. This signed form will serve as your Rutgers ID and expires on the last day of the semester audited.
